HOW THEY DO TRAVEL

It has been remarked that a fly has wings, and thrust takes a slow flight and gets on off on the spur and low.

A few weeks ago, some North Alabama paper, probably the Hixfield Standard, boasted that there was no cemetery there "it wasn't Dothan that denied having a cemetery, anyway, but we got the credit for such a statement."

According to the Hixfield Standard "The Commercial Appeal says Dothan, Alabama, (no need to put Alabama—everybody knows where it is) boasts that it is the only town without a cemetery. Nobody knows there long enough to die. Then the Standard says this is a pretty heavy jolt on the capital of Dothan country."

If we said it we would stick to it and try to prove that we didn't have a cemetery, but we didn't say it. It was said by some of the careless town boozers, editors of North Alabama.

"But alive!" We started ceremonies here the next day after we started the town, and its growth is only exceeded by that of the city.

We have people buried in our cemetery who never even lived in Dothan, and a few who never saw the town. You see when people died that they can be as completely planted here and at such a small cost the relatives ship the remains here. They know too that in a few days a growing town a town that will always keep the cemetery in good condition and that fact alone has brought some corpses here for people who think anything of their relatives don't want them laid to rest in a weed grown forgotten town.

The fact of the business the cemetery of Dothan is one of our drawing cards and real estate men refer to it in their circulars.

It is true a Dothan citizen hardly ever dies and some of them will be so knock in the head with an axe when the curtain falls for the first time, but that doesn't keep the town from handling a flourishing graveyard.

The actions have even got a good graveyard yet. They soon filled up the first one they selected and this year bought a new one with all modern conveniences which will probably meet the demands for light in ten years.

In walking over the city's cemetery following on the headstones seem almost so many and the graves of people who were shipped here to be laid away in a thoroughly up-to-date cemetery and it is only once in a while that you will see a name that is familiar to the Dothan citizen.

There are handsome headways that completely enclose the graves and ready eye check and north south east and west and a row of hands keeps the grounds like a spotless front yard.

This too cheap but the price is going up the fast of the year here at other Dothan dirt.

If you can't come to Dothan in the driveway to have your body shipped here after you die and we will take the grave garden and the flowers blooming and the mocking birds sing, this really all the year round.

PROTECTION WANTED

There is an epidemic in Dothan for a new enterprise. We have physicians on call and stand in a line and have his pants pressed on to it while it is going on. We have places where one can go and have his feet cleaned and pressed and his shoes shined while he waits. We have another night good place where clothes can be laundered but the majority of the people prefer the steam laundries don't feel able to have the whole wash done there and save out the greater part of it for the washer lady. That's where the trouble comes in. The washer lady comes for the clothes in a month.

In the year and the other two months she leaves and goes to the cotton patch.

This all makes a reason why there is a room in this town for another industry. It wouldn't be in competition with any of the enterprises that are now operating, and it is a reason. We should have an enterprise that would do the laundry work the ordinary clothes sent to the washer lady and not the stuff we call the laundry. The at the laundry would like to have all of that but it never expects to get it all. It might be prepared to do it as cheap as any one could but it has been such a little that there is too far an enterprise that will do the wash that the washer lady is now being employed to do. Watson could be sent out some Monday morning and let the wash and then return it Friday as the washer lady now does. Only you wouldn't have to pay them to do the work and hire them too. You could just pay them and that would settle it. Such an institution would be there every week cotton patch or no cotton patch and would follow a more or less hardworking delegation from the drudgery.

A man in put him in a 19 gallon syrup kettle, tap a water spout and get on a mount lot under a shelter and under this house. He could make a good living doing washing and with eight or ten scrubbers he would turn out more clothes than fifty washer ladies now turn out every block of day that comes. As he progressed in could add a dry kiln to be used in rainy weather.

There is no money in it and first thing you know some fellow will come along and organize a steel company.

This wouldn't interfere with the steam laundry. It would get the best lines that is now given to the washer lady and after you have driven all up a town and earned for the cloth and then a huge lot to do it paying just a little more for the wash each week.

Many a scheme has been put on foot that offered much less chance of making money than this kind of one and we trust that somebody will see it and give the town a jolt.

THE SPANISH PRISON, ALBANY

Personally we have no knowledge that Spain has a prison neither do we know that that country has any of the refineries and comforts now almost equal to an American prison. We do know, however, that there are people in Spain who are Americans for good money on various pretenses.

For years we have all heard of the fellow in a Spanish prison who knew where a large lot of money was secreted. It would never do him any good but he is always willing to do this with some American whom he has never seen. If he will be so good as to send a few dollars to help pay expenses about the prison he will see how free if they employ them over there.

A Dothan citizen received one of those pitiful appeals the other day from a guy in jail at Madrid (not Watch Madrid City, Madrid) by Madrid Spain. This fellow knew all about where $100,000 was hid and offered a third interest in the pile to the citizen here in town. He was to be cut a cablegram as letters would not be delivered. Cablegrams would be published in the afternoon paper in full in the office of a thing. It was not in the hands of the fellow then and the Spanish and Madrid State's police office authorities dogged his trail so he just a cablegram. And then sent he would have told just how much money I would like to get the other fabulous amount.

The fellow's story about the money was that it was hidden in a box in a cellar but it fell in a low box (the fellow's name) and is to how to do in the wardrobe.

It is a pity that so many men in a Spanish prison with such a lot of money secreted in some old trunk some of the stuff is it takes time from time. So you have to be careful with a trust in these guys and they want to do the square with you. When you expect a willing man to get a job you will be no filled that it will take more than a month to qualify a man here.

We have always believed that thousands of dollars go out of this country every year to Spain but the people who do it in this the part of the country and folks they never let it be known at home.

WE USE MACHINES TO DO THE COTTON

There is no us in talking about the price of cotton. It is due to the present crop. It is a big one not withstanding, the unfavorable reports that went out about the boll weevil and the caterpillar.

Had half a crop been made the farmers would have realized about the same out of it and would not have been paying from 60c to $1.10 hundred to get it picked.

The world is getting bigger from a consumption of cotton standpoint but it must be generally realized that we are using more modern methods in farming, and a one horse farmer of ten years ago who was lucky if he got a half a bushel of cotton, fit in and twenty to the place that is turning out more cotton than it is costing more to produce it.

High price of cotton for two or three years has caused the farmer to overdo the business just a little. There is nothing you can tell him that will make him quit it and experience is the only thing that comes slowly. One farmer will think that the other will not plant much this year and the price will be high so he will turn in and plant all he can work and take chances in getting town buyers to pick it. As a result bales and bales of cotton in Houston country are lying whipped out on the ground with not enough hands to pick it. The farmer who had his own help and planned so that he could take care of it has his cotton out and the bulk of it on the market before the low price hit him.

The one thing that has had some thing to do with running the price down is the fact that every body has been bringing cotton to market for the last two weeks that had a bale to bring. They were probably making money that was pressing them and wanted it paid but it is a bad idea to put so much of it on the market at one time.

A man who is not obliged to sell his cotton to pay pressing debts should keep it till later in the season.

MR. CLIPPER FARMER

The Clipper. How it is farmed of Dothan is prominently mentioned as a candidate for congressman from the State at large. If he gets into the race he will be a formidable candidate. Let him enter the race and let him practice to represent the third district in 1934.

The Clipper is wrong, in thinking, that Mr. Farmer would consider entering the race for congressman from the third district so long as Henry Clayton wants it. The two are close personal friends but should that Henry be promoted any time then it might be a good time to consider this district. If Mr. Farmer runs it will be for congressman at large and when the state is redivided if ever there is no telling where we will be but he will be in line to come in some place.

DESIGNED BY SPERO, MICHAEL & SON NEW YORK

There is a Table in the Dark in a Four inches of Soil.

If you have at your disposal a small and quite dark cellar and an old kitchen table, how would you like to grow potatoes, excellent ones that are declared to be superior in flavor to the ordinary farm grown variety? This can be done very easily by following a method which is attracting considerable attention in France.

First of all you need the dark cellar. The absence of light is essential, for the filtration of even a few rays of light would cause the potatoes to waste their energies in putting forth sprouts in all directions instead of the buds of little potatoes. Next you need a table, over which you place a layer two or three inches thick of fine, dry and carefully sifted earth. Then you select some good two-year-old potatoes—that is to say, those of last year's gathering. Any potatoes in a good state of preservation will do, but it is best to select large tubers without defects, for the slightest trace of fungus spreads rapidly and may spoil the whole crop. Now take a slightly moistened sponge and pass it over each potato to work off the cryptogamic germs that are so injurious to vegetable tissues. If some of the potatoes have already begun to sprout the sprouts must be removed, carefully without wounding the tuber.

After you have done all this take the potatoes one by one and half bury them in the soil, planting them in rows spaced about four inches apart.

There is no back breaking toil with the hoe in the brooding sun and no fighting against potato bugs. The tubers should be inspected by candlelight occasionally to see that everything is progressing satisfactorily. In two or three weeks after planting it will be found that each potato is covered with tiny white points which several days later change into little potatoes that grow rapidly.

When the little potatoes are reasonably large they may be carefully removed, leaving in place the old potatoes, which continue to bear. Several weeks later another crop may be gathered and even a third. The budding continues until the parent tuber is completely exhausted and nothing remains of it but the skin.

In case sprouts push forth on the potatoes they must be cut off with scissors. Potatoes grown in this way have one very excellent quality. They have so thin a skin that it may be simply washed off. No scraping or paring is necessary. They also have an excellent flavor and are firmer than ordinary farm grown varieties, with less tendency to soften.—New York World.

An Interpreter Needed.

The following story from Harper's Magazine furnishes a rare instance of that devotion to a foreign language which has caused one to forget for the moment that he speaks his own tongue:

An Englishman, who spent his time in adapting plays from the French for the British stage, was dining once in an English hotel when, after he had eaten, he was seized with a desire to smoke. He called the waiter and said to him:

"Pent-on fumer ici?"

The man looked blank. "I don't understand a word of French, sir," he said.

The waiter was in despair. "Then for pity's sake send me some one who does!" he exclaimed.

Where the Fire Was.

Sleeping during the sermon is a poor compliment to the preacher, but it is not often that the man in the pulpit turns the occasion to such effective use as did John Wesley. The apostle of Methodism was preaching, while many of his hearers slept. Suddenly he startled them by a loud cry of "Fire! Fire!" There was a momentary panic among the congregation, and a man cried out, "Where, sir? Where?" "In hell," the preacher replied, "for those who sleep under the preaching of the word."—London Chronicle.

Power of Praise.

There is one thing which no man, however generously disposed, can give, but which every one, however poor, is bound to pay. This is praise. He cannot give it because it is not his own, since what is dependent for its very existence on something in another can never become to him a possession, nor can he justly withhold it when the presence of merit claims it as a consequence.—Washington Allston.

The Old, Old Story.

"Daughter, has the duke told you the old, old story as yet?"

"Yes, he says he owes about 200,000 plants."—Pittsburg Post.

The great majority of people could double their power of achievement by a little self discipline in learning so as to get hold of themselves as to depend on the prompt, decisive action of their own faculties. A little system alone would double the efficiency of many a business man who does not know why he does not get on faster. He works very hard perhaps and thinks that he has not half time enough to do what he ought to, but he could save more than half the time that he now throws away in doing things over and over again from lack of order. System is a tremendous energy saver and time saver.—Orison Sweet Marden in Success Magazine.

A Qualification.

Rastus was honest and industrious, but, in the opinion of the new minister, unsociable.

"Neighborliness, my dear friend," said the dominie, "is brotherliness. Do you take the trouble to see much of your neighbors?"

"Ah reckon Ah sees as much of them as dey sees of me," Rastus replied.

"Perhaps," said the clergyman, "but do you love your neighbor as yourself?"

"Ah reckon Ah does, pahson," Rastus replied, "but you know, ach, Ah ain't p'tic'larly stuck on mahself neither."—Success Magazine.

Not Her Worry.

"My husband received a note today as a woman's handwriting."

"Did you open it?"

"I did not. And, what is more, I left him by himself to read it at his leisure."

"Don't you worry over it?"

"No, for I think he does. It was from my dressmaker."

Manufacturer.—I understand. You wish for some armor plate which no cannon shot can pierce. We are turning out that kind of thing every day.

Government Agent.—No, no! You misunderstand me. I wish you to manufacture a cannon that can pierce any armor plate.

Manufacturer.—Oh, certainly! We are turning out that kind of work every day also.—London Mail.

Equal to the Occasion.

"Does your husband ever compare your ways with his family?" asked the mischief making friend.

"Oh, yes," said the little bride, dimpling, "but I never get angry."

"That's sweet of you," warmly exclaimed the friend. "But what does the brute say?"

"He says," replied the bride, "that there is nothing in our home like the rumpus his mother used to make."—Washington Star.

There are many things that determine the quantity of water that escaped from a small orifice in the reservoir. The simplest kind consisted of a transparent vase filled with water, graduated and having a small aperture in the bottom. As the liquid escaped its height in the receptacle marked the hour.

An Appropriate Name.

"It is a pretty name," the impressionable traveler murmured. "But, tell me, why do they call you Manita?"

"There was an arch smile on the savage maiden's face.

"Evidently," she said as she signaled to her brothers, who were concealed in the brush with clubs, "you do not know our favorite food."

The Suez canal was begun by French engineers in 1858 and dredging was begun by an English contractor, Daniel Lango. In 1869 the water of the Mediterranean was admitted into a channel connecting with Lake Timsalt. In 1869, in February, a vessel containing thirty persons passed from sea to sea, and on Aug. 15 the canal was in part opened. The first ship from sea to sea was the Prima, which made the passage on Feb. 17, 1867. The Mediterranean water on March 18, 1868, was admitted to the Salt lakes. The formal opening of the canal was celebrated Nov. 23, 1869. The widening of the canal dates from the formal adoption of plans, Feb. 5, 1865.

HAVE HIGH IDEALS.

Open the Standard You Have Deserve
Your Future Career

What we make of ourselves depends upon the ideals which we habitually hold. Our lives are shaped by our mental models. If these be high the life is lofty; if low it is low. Man is no better than his ideals. The stream can not rise higher than its source. Our work can never outstep our ideal our ambition. It is a great thing to keep the constant suggestion of high ideals, of things that are grand and noble in human achievement in the mind. It tends to make us love the right and hate the wrong.

There is one thing we ought to hold in such sacredness that no consideration could induce us to dilute
it, and that is the quality of the life, the quality of our ideals. Whatever else we are careless about, we can not afford to carry through life low ideals, second class personalities or demoralizing mentalities. However humble our homes or ordinary our environment, we should keep the quality of the life, the personality,
at the highest possible standard.
We should allow nothing to deteriorate it.

Yet most people are careless and indifferent regarding the quality of their lives. There is a slipshodness in their living, a slovenliness in their mentalities, which tend to degrade the quality of the life and make it cheap and commonplace.

Whatever your career, guard
your ideal as the apple of your eye.
The pearl of great price for every thing depends upon the direction in which it points. If it points downward no amount of money or influence can redeem you from the filthiness or even save you from a degraded life. Man is so made that he must follow his ideal. He can not go up if his ideal points down.

o Kept His Beard

It was only Nicholas I. whom Marianne had on a memorable occasion. The singer was in St. Peter-burg in 1881, when he received a commission from the czar to sing in a little play which would have lasted about twenty minutes. He was to take the part of a young officer of the time of Louis XV. and Mariano, who was very proud of his mustache and short curly beard, declined. Finally he was sent for by the Emperor's main conductor, who who was always very friendly to him. He obeyed the command at once. The Emperor greeted him the moment he entered her auditorium with "Dear M. Mariano, do for my sake shave and sing in this play."

"Your majesty," said Mariano kneeling and kissing the outstretched hand. "I would give you my life but my beard—impossible." Finally the czar ordered Mariano either to shave or go. Mariano instantly returned his salary and left Russia—

The Almanac Was Guilty

Completes of almanacs in France are legally responsible for the accuracy of their publications. This point was determined by a case tried in the days of Louis Philippe Ouvrard, a well known army contractor fell into difficulties and was severely pressed by his creditors. According to French law, debtors cannot be arrested between sunset and sunrise. One evening Ouvrard sallied forth in quest of fresh air and was seized by a bailiff as he stepped out of his house. He protested and produced an almanac showing that it was three minutes past sunset. The bailiff produced another almanac showing that the sun did not set for another nine minutes. On his release from prison Ouvrard said the publisher of the almanac which had misled and obtained damages.
